REES AND SAITO MISS EACH OTHER

Japanese Consul General Miki Saito and Captain Corwin P. Rees, the new commandant of the local naval station, tried to meet each other yesterday, but in vain. How and why the two officials missed each other can be easily explained. It is reported that Saito drove down to the naval station with the intention of paying his respects to the new commandant. Captain Rees, without knowing of the approach of the Japanese Consul, drove his carriage to the Japanese Consulate. When he arrived at the Consulate, Captain Rees was informed that Consul Saito had gone down to the naval station. Saito, in the meantime, had reached the naval station and was informed that Captain Rees had driven up to the Japanese Consulate General.

When they found out that there was nothing for them to do, they drove back to their respective stations. Each one was expecting a call from the other today.

ILLUMINATE TOWN

Editor Evening Bulletin:—I see it is suggested that the illumination be confined to the Capitol grounds. That fireworks and illuminations be held there is a fine idea. But light up the town too. Light means gladness. It is very cheerful wandering round a dark city. If every householder in the most frequented streets would burn more lights during the time, it would help light up the town and make things bright and festive.

WIRELESS YARN

Wireless Expert Isbell was asked this morning if he had made any attempt last night to reach the Fleet or the Coast.

"I made no such attempt," he answered, "and I did not intend to do so. The report to that effect was only a reporter's yarn. I am not going to try before we get the mast up at Kahuku."

LINK IS WANTED

(Continued from Page 1A) ing whether he was seeking the nomination or whether he would agree to run if it should be offered him.

"I am not seeking any nomination," he answered. "As a matter of fact, I would rather not run. I joined the Democratic party in order to help it to the best of my ability in its efforts to have the administration of land matters changed, and I will stay with it and work to that end whether I am nominated for office or not. I was present at the meeting last night and heard that the people of Kauai wanted me to run. I have also been urged by my friends here to run for Delegate or for the Senate."

At the meeting last night a committee, consisting of W. B. McClellan, H. J. Mossman and John Emmeluth, was chosen to prepare campaign literature. Ed. Ingham, Iola Kikakahi, Joe Fern, L. C. McCandless, Frank Harvey, and R. H. Trent were selected as a committee to prepare a plan for the campaign. H. J. Mossman was chosen as a committee of one to look after the matter of a hall and the furnishing thereof for the coming Territorial convention. Waverly Hall will be used.

The meetings of the precinct club for the nomination of delegates to the Territorial convention will take place next Monday evening.

Little - At - A - Time

THIS is a new Department opened by J. HOPP & CO., the largest furniture house in the islands. In their "LITTLE-AT-A-TIME" Department this well-known furniture house has made arrangements whereby a most anyone of reliable habits can furnish one room for a house or all the furniture needed to furnish a house or cottage complete by making a small advance payment and then making many small weekly or monthly payments. It is the same idea and system which has assisted many householders in securing from the jewelers their silver services. The only difference is that in the jewelry clubs one does not get the articles until a large number of payments have been made, and in the case of J. HOPP & CO. they permit one to have immediate delivery of the furniture and then to make their "Little-At-A-Time" payments while they are enjoying the use of it. Why not have your home well furnished at once and enjoy the use of the goods during the time one ordinarily has to wait until one can save the money to furnish a house? Other people have their homes well furnished on this basis, why cannot you?

J. HOPP & CO. have a large portion of the massive LEWERS & COOKE BUILDING, on King St., filled with furniture which they offer to you on this basis. Such liberal accommodation as this costs the customer only a little more than it would were he to buy the goods for cash. Drop into the J. HOPP & CO. store and enquire into the details of this offer.

HAWAII'S CHINESE ACTIVE

The committee appointed at the large mass meeting recently held in Honolulu have been actively at work making plans for the carrying on of their friendly campaign of education in regard to the Chinese needs of these islands. The information committee have sent a catalog account of their meeting to the Associated Press of America and are sending several hundreds of letters to the editors of the principal newspapers of the United States. The Chinese Consul here has sent a letter and a copy of the resolutions adopted to the Chinese Ambassador at Washington, Wu Ting Fang.

The working committee on China have written and translated letters on the subject and are sending them to different parts of China and to all the Chinese newspapers there, and also to the Chinese newspapers published in different parts of the world. They ask the co-operation of officials and Chinese students everywhere in this friendly movement of enlightenment as to things Chinese. The local committee are also quietly at work seeking the help, advice and cooperation of the Americans in Honolulu who are interested in this effort. All have great hopes that this work of giving information will bring about some good results in the future.
